Bridge costs under estimates

By WAYNE LYON The Dixon City Council, resigned in recent months to seeing bid after bid exceeding estimated costs, got pleasant news at Monday night's meeting at City Hall. The Peoria Avenue Bridge rebuilding is going to cost less than was estimated. The bids for the project were let Friday on the job and Ladd Construction Co.'s low figure of $636,869 is $12,131 below engineering estimates of $649,000. The skyrocketing costs of the bridge job had been a source of council worry in the closing days of the past fiscal year. Commissioner Jim G. Burke summed it up Monday night with a sigh of relief and the statement, "I thought it might have boiled down to blacktopping the bridge and calling it good." Approximately 70 per cent of the cost to repair the bridge will come from Federal Aid Urban funds administered by the State Department of Transportation. The other 30 per cent will be assumed locally. The local share will be drawn from motor fuel tax shares. Federal revenue sharing funds cannot be used because federal funds can't be used to match federal funds. A breakdown on the contract shows $445,808.30 will be provided in FAU funds. Local share will be $191,060.70. Of the local share, the Lee County Board has agreed to pay $90,000. That leaves the city's share at $101,060.70. The contract calls for rebuilding and widening of the bridge deck from 50 feet to 60 feet. The Peoria Avenue Bridge repairs came into focus later in the council meeting when Phyllis Healy, executive manager of the Chamber of Commerce, expressed concern over bridge construction during the Petunia Festival. She was particularly concerned over the route of the Parade on July 6. The parade traditionally crosses the Peoria Avenue Bridge and disassembles in the Page Park area. Burke commented, "If the construction is under way, it doesn't seem practical for the parade to cross it." The possibility of the parade using the Galena Avenue bridge was mentioned, but it was thought the State Department of Transportation would not like to see that span closed by the parade, particularly with the Peoria Avenue Bridge under construction. The possibility of ending the Parade at Peoria Avenue and River Street was mentioned. A request by the Yellow Cab Co. to close between the hours of 1 a.m. and 5 a.m. until Oct. 1 was discussed. Commissioner Arthur Tofte, in asking council sentiment, said many nights there are no calls at all during those hours, but a driver and phone operator must be kept on duty. City Attorney Tomas Magdich explained to the council, which expressed a desire to try the plan, the city cab ordinance could be changed or a resolution could be passed to suspend enforcement of that part of the ordinance for a specific time. Commissioner Walter P. Lohse said he felt the request was a reasonable one and "we should try it." Lohse proposed action on the resolution to suspend the ordinance at the next meeting on May 19 and having it go into effect on June 1. Lohse told the council that closing of the contract for the city's purchase of the Beamblossom parking lot is tentatively set for Thursday. Price of the lot will be $65,000. "We'll have to borrow the money and pay it back from parking meter receipts," Lohse explained. "We have not used parking meter funds for anything other than parking lots and we are in good shape. Almost all the present lots are paid for." Lohse went on to say he felt the amount he borrowed should include money to resurface the lot and fix it up. Burke said he would provide Lohse with estimates on repairs to the lot, including plans drawn by Architect John McLane Jr., for plantings and beautification. The regular business conducted at the meeting was mostly routine. Designation of duties of commissioners was approved, with Lohse again heading the accounts and finance department; Tofte remaining as commissioner of public health and safety; Burke moving to commissioner of public property and Thomas A. Densmore assuming duties as commissioner of streets and public improvements. All of the city's department heads and officials were reappointed. The breakdown: Ed Pierce, fire chief; Earl Kelchner, police chief; Clarence Hill, superintendent of the sewage treatment plant; Ed Slain, Oakwood Cemetery superintendent; Charles Sterricker, street superintendent; Darlene Herzog, comptroller and treasurer; Arlene Fahs, assistant treasurer; Mary Cook, city clerk; Albert Callahan, assistant city clerk, and Magdich, city attorney. In the only other action, the council: —Approved a plan by radio station WIXN to air live broadcasts of city council sessions. The only question on the request came from Lohse who wanted to know "Can we restrict them from doing so if we desire." Magdich explained the council had that right, but said if the broadcasts had no "disruptive influence" on the sessions, he thought it would be a "good thing" because "the more people find out what we're doing here, the better off we'll be." —Accepted and placed on file the minutes of the Plan Commission meeting of April 30. —Reviewed the vote canvass of the April 15 general election and determined the total vote cast was 4,133.

Assistant attorney general to confer on vote probe

By LENNY INGRASSIA The deputy director of financial crimes for the Illinois Attorney General's office will meet Friday with State's Atty. Patrick E. Ward to discuss alleged absentee voting irregularities which surfaced in the April 15 city elections. Ward launched the probe based on the large number of absentee ballots cast, in comparison with the last city election. Michael Murphy, who is based in the Chicago attorney general's office, was expected to assist in possible grand jury proceedings and prosecution of those involved. Ward said the financial crimes section of the department is involved because of the termed "white-collar crime" suspected. "This isn't your average criminal element," Ward said in referring to the nature of his investigation. The investigation has centered on 515 absentee voters, some of who were suspected of being coerced into voting absentee by campaign workers in a door-to-door campaign in the days prior to the election. The number of absentees compares to 55 cast in the 1971 city election. Of the 515, an estimated 222 were taken from the City Clerk's office on behalf of the campaign of Jim G. Burke. An additional 51 were coded with the name of Thomas Densmore.

Both candidates were successful in their bid for election as city commissioners. Two full-time investigators from the Dixon Police and Lee County Sheriff's Departments have been assigned to perform follow-up work on the investigation. Detective Howard Swegle and Chief Deputy Sheriff Eugene Lutz were assigned to interview the voters whose names appeared on the absentee lists. After Ward received the lists from City Clerk Mary Cook, the city filed suit against Ward's office to stop any further delivery of election materials to Ward until a court decision is made. Although no date had been set for a hearing on the suit, Chief Circuit Judge James E. Bales has assigned the case to Oregon Circuit Judge F. Lawrence Lenz. Judge Bales said the reassignment was prompted to assure that none of the Circuit Court judges in the Lee County Courthouse who voted in the election would decide the issue. Ward continues to keep a lid on full results of the investigation, saying "We found a little bit of everything." Of the absentee voters interviewed, Ward did say 95 per cent of them named one candidate as being the one who confronted them. Ward would not name the candidate. Were indictments returned against campaign workers or candidates in the election, and those persons convicted of crimes locally, the outcome of the election was not expected to be changed. Such a change would have to come from the State Elections Board. Many of the residents who voted absentee were elderly. Some told investigators they were told they could vote absentee in their homes instead of on election day. Still other said they were told they could vote part of the ballot absentee and then vote the remainder on election day. The investigators were making a thorough check of all addresses listed on the voter lists to verify that such addresses exist. Also being checked were persons' names on the lists to verify their signature. It is expected that a number of the absentee voters would be called upon to testify at grand jury proceedings. No date had been set for the session. At the outset of the investigation, Ward said his office would seek charges of subornation of perjury against certain persons. The charge accuses persons of asking someone to falsify a statement under oath for the benefit of a single candidate.

Disturbance leads to five charges

Five charges were placed against a 29-year-old Dixon man by Dixon Police following a series of incidents early today. Richard Bader, 29, 1506 W. Second St., was charged with assault, two counts of criminal damage to property, reckless conduct and aggravated battery. According to reports, Bader's wife, Barbara, was told by her children their father had been to the house several times and was in an angry and upset condition. Mrs. Bader took the children to her parents' house, then sent her brother, Wade Ohman, back to the Bader house to pick up her checks and several other items. Ohman, who signed a complaint against Bader, told police when he arrived at the Bader home he walked in and discovered the suspect standing in the kitchen hallway with his back to him. Ohman told the suspect he came to pick up some of Barbara's things. When Bader turned around, Ohman could see a knife in his hand. He said Bader told him to get out of the house and started to walk toward him. Ohman started to leave and then heard a crash when Bader allegedly kicked the door open and told him not to touch the doorknobs because they were wired. Ohman told police he got in his car and went to his home, when he called police. When police arrived at the Bader home they checked the house but could not find anyone. After hearing noises on the roof, an officer crawled through a window to get on the lower roof of the house where he spotted Bader lying down on the peak of the roof with a knife in his hand. The suspect dropped the knife after being ordered to, then slid off the roof. The Dixon Fire Department's Emergency vehicle was called to transport Bader to KSB Hospital where he was treated and released. While being fingerprinted at the Dixon Police Station, Bader asked to talk to the sergeant about dropping the reckless

Death ruled accidental

Lee County Coroner Robert Preston conducted an inquest into the death of a Dixon State School resident Monday afternoon. Killed when struck by a truck was Barbara Hasbrouk, 20, Chicago. The death was ruled accidental. According to Preston, the woman was killed when she ran into the side of the truck and fell under the rear of the truck, where the rear wheels ran over her head and chest. The International truck, driven by Robert Krug Sr., 58, 1009 Palmyra, had just been given the signal to pull away from the loading dock by one of the two men riding at the rear of the truck and could not see the victim.

Mills applauded upon return to Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., was greeted by applause today as he attended his first committee hearing of the year. Mills, who resumed his Capitol Hill duties Monday following weeks of treatment for alcoholism, was applauded by members of the House Ways and Means Committee as he was welcomed to the seat reserved for the second-ranking Democrat. "We look forward to your participation," Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., told Mills. "We have lots of problems and we need your expertise." Mills told the committee it had no reason to miss him. "You have performed magnificently," he said.

Ford 'damned mad' over opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford was quoted today as saying opposition to bringing Vietnamese refugees to the United States "makes me damned mad." Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania described Ford's feelings after a GOP leadership meeting at the White House. The leaders were briefed by L. Dean Brown, coordinator of the administration's refugee program. As the President's $507 million request for up to 150,000 Indochina refugees drew hard and sometimes hostile questioning in Congress, three senators introduced a bill to authorize "such sums as may be necessary" to provide humanitarian assistance for the refugees. The bill was submitted by Sens. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., and Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn. Pell called it "the right thing to do." Javits said Americans would not let their fears override their tradition of generosity to refugees.

A White House spokesman quoted Ford as telling the congressional delegation about opposition to the refugees: "It just burns me up, these great humanitarians. They just want to turn their backs." "We didn't do it with the Hungarians; we didn't do it with the Cubans; and, damn it, we're not going to do it now." Scott and Rep. Hamilton Fish Jr., R-N.Y., said Ford and Brown "put to rest any fears the refugees would cause severe economic impact" by assuring the congressmen that the refugees would be settled thinly over the United States. Fish, a member of the House Judiciary Committee's immigration subcommittee, said that so far 20,000 refugees have arrived in the United States, that another 100,000 are at staging areas in the Pacific and an untold number are on board ships. A White House spokesman said that about 60 per cent of the refugees are children not seeking jobs and about 35,000 are heads of households. The spokesman also said Ford has received communications from AFL-CIO President George Meany and Pope Paul VI urging him to take in the refugees. Asked if he thought some of the opposition to the refugees was racist, Scott replied, "Enough to make you sick." He singled out for criticism Sen. George McGovern, of South Dakota, the 1972 Democratic presidential nominee, who has suggested some refugees might want to return to Vietnam rather than settle in the United States. Scott described McGovern's position as advocating sending the refugees back to Vietnam, and said it was a betrayal of professed liberalism. President Ford's $507 million request for up to 150,000 Indochina refugees is drawing hard and sometimes hostile questioning in Congress. Chairman Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa., said Monday after the initial hearing on the request that his House immigration subcommittee will need "soul searching" and more information before it acts. Eilberg said the $507 million is an estimate by the administration of what the otherwise unlimited programs for South Vietnam and Cambodia refugees will cost. Subcommittee members pressed for more precise figures on refugees and costs, and Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., said any war profiteers, torturers and killers among the refugees should be screened out. The director of Ford's refugee task force, Ambassador L. Dean Brown, told Eilberg's subcommittee the $507 million is acutely needed because $98 million in funds available now will be exhausted in a week. Meanwhile, there were these related developments: —The Immigration and Naturalization Service said it is investigating several commercial airlines to determine if they flew illegal aliens into the United States from Indochina. The probe is not directed toward the huge evacuation of South Vietnam during the final days of the war but at earlier commercial flights, possibly including some airlifts of orphans. U.S. laws prohibit airlines from bringing into the United States any alien lacking a visa. —The State Department has established a special referral office for Americans wishing to assist in the resettlement of Vietnam refugees. Sponsors assist the refugees in adjusting to their new environment, finding homes and jobs and taking care of their families. The special office has a toll free telephone number of 800-368-1180. Eilberg told newsmen the subcommittee might act in a week, and he predicted the panel would not "approve all the programs they asked." He amended that in an interview later, saying it was too early to predict what the subcommittee will do or how soon.

Big government breeds bigger government

By RONALD REAGAN

Big government breeds bigger government—especially in times of crisis. That has become a truism. And, the best recent example of this is the so-called energy crisis with which the United States has been beset for the last two years.

Efforts to cope with the "crisis" have bred new agencies at both the state and federal levels. Unfortunately, new agencies mean more than just adding bureaucrats and additional budgets to the cost of government. They also mean new rules, regulations and controls, all part of the self-justification process for continuation of the agencies.

Sadly, long experience shows that these seldom meet expectations and the good they do is not often worth the cost, either in dollars or in loss of freedom.

A few months ago the influential and wealthy Ford Foundation issued the results of a three-year, $4 million study called "A Time To Choose America's Energy Future." It was hailed by various experts, government officials and members of Congress for pointing the way toward a logical, long-range energy policy for the United States.

But does it really?

A closer look and a careful analysis produced by a small, new foundation, the Institute for Contemporary Studies, in San Francisco, takes sharp issue with the Ford study.

Trenchantly titled "No Time To Confuse," the analysis is the work of 10 highly respected economists and political scientists. What it concludes is that the Ford study merely offers us more of the same kind of "solutions" that big government advocates have been handing us all along: controls over production, distribution and prices; mandatory guidelines; and proposals that aim not at finding and developing enough energy sources to allow America to be independent and to continue to grow and expand, but rather at limiting energy consumption and controlling how each one of us uses it.

In fact, "No Time To Confuse" finds that the authors of "A Time To Choose" are more interested in presenting their own views of how they think the world should be than they are in developing an energy policy that will function well within the framework of our free enterprise system. Prof. M. Bruce Johnson, in his segment of "No Time To Confuse," charges bluntly that the Ford study is no more than "a vehicle for the authors' views on income redistribution and environmental action."

But even worse, in the view of Prof. William H. Riker, is the kind of ideology that motivates the authors of the Ford study.

"This kind of ideology is used to justify the existence of a planned society which works, if it works at all, only in the context of a police state. Much of the ordinary workaday life would have to be made illegal to force society to make fuel conservation the highest priority. We could make 'energy conservation a matter of the highest national priority' as the report urges Congress to do, but the kind of life for which we conserved it would not be very attractive."

Like his fellow authors of "No Time To Confuse," Riker is a master of understatement. What the authors of the Ford study seem to be looking toward is a society where everything that isn't prohibited is compulsory.

Isn't it time that Americans began to demand that their government leaders seek solutions that liberate us rather than control us? Apparently, the Ford Foundation "experts" don't think so.

Man has inhabited earth three million years

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

News from Labrador indicates that the spades of the archaeologists always seem to be confounding what we know about where we came from.

Palaeoanthropologists study human evolution. Using the astounding Radio-Carbon 14 method, universally accepted as conclusive, they confirm Africa's plains to be the crib of mankind.

The key—supported by excavations at Ethiopia's Afar, north of Addis Ababa, and Kenya's East Rudolf, north of Nairobi—was the excavation of the so-called Zinj Man in Tanzania's Olduvai Gorge.

It established humans on our earth 1.75 million years ago—a full 1.5 million years earlier than Asia's Peking Man.

But new evidence by Kenya's Dr. Richard Leakey alters this. It suggests that relatively intelligent "near man," called Australopithecus, inhabited these plains in complex societies and invented stone tools at least three million years ago.

This is 1.25 million years earlier than the Zinj Man.

We, of course, are vertebrates. How does it happen we survived? Palaeoanthropologists and archaeologists have discovered more than 2,500 vertebrate families in the world's fossil records. About two-thirds of them have died without successors.

But even among the survivors, nearly three million years passed before we communicated systematically with each other in writing, a little novelty the Chinese were tinkering with 10,000 years ago.

In our earliest days there were not many of us and our lives were tragically short. The average life span of the Stone Age man was 20 years. Scattered throughout the world there were probably fewer people than live now in a small-size city. Even at the time of British Queen Elizabeth I there were still only an estimated 500 million people in the world. Even by the 17th century, Britain had only one town exceeding 30,000 population.

Our earth is some 4.5 billion years old. Before the continents broke apart about 250 million years ago, at the beginning of the age of the dinosaurs, Africa, Australia, Antarctica, North and South America, etc., were a solid land mass.

The Bering Sea was a land bridge. The bridge was about 1,800 miles wide—more than half the width of today's United States. And palaeoanthropologists say the first Americans came across this bridge.

This was about 40,000 years ago. The people were following the animals to North America.

Their travels were slow. They had neither horses nor wheels. Alaska and our Pacific Northwest were steaming jungles. It was difficult to wander through them. And it was not until these men and women got to Mexico that a high civilization (Mayan) was developed.

The Incas were actually latecomers in Peru. The Chavin culture dates from only about 1200 B.C. The city of Cuzco was not founded until 1100 A.D. But certainly these first Americans traveled as far as Peru.

The results of the astounding Radio-Carbon 14 method show that men were living in Peru at least 22,000 years ago. Their bones predate the saber-tooth tiger, which has been extinct about 14,000 years.

Now there is news from near Segek Fiord, Labrador, that men and women were also on our East coast much earlier than supposed.

Scandinavians and others were transverse the North Atlantic yearly in the 8th century. They were searching for mankind's earliest bonanza, the whale.

Eric the Red discovered North America in 985 A.D. Snorri, Norwegian Thorfinn Karlsefni's male child, was born in Greenland in 922; the first European known definitely to have been born in America; precisely 500 years before Columbus reached the West Indies.

The spades of the archaeologists have found near Segek Fiord the bones of people they call Archaics. The Radio-Carbon 14 method shows that these date back about 5,000 years—to about when Egypt's first pyramids were built and the Hanging Gardens of Babylon were landscaped.

Palaeoanthropologists feel able to prove that Archaics from Labrador were scattered across a vast area of what is now the United States as far south as Florida and west as far as Texas and Minnesota.

The sands of time may grind fine but the archaeologists' spades and the palaeoanthropologists' work make the sands meaningful.

Farmers not exploited by Wall Street

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The text of an address by Dr. Milton Friedman, Paul Snowden Russell Distinguished Service Professor of Economics, University of Chicago, delivered at Rockford College, will be printed in 10 installments. Following is the third installment.)

What about the charge that the agricultural community was being ground down, that it was being exploited by the Wall Street bankers? That we needed to have a greenback movement and a Populist movement and a William Jennings Bryan?

Once again, the evidence against that is very simple and very clear. In the first place, if agriculture was being especially exploited, you would expect the number of people on farms to go down, but the number of people on farms rose by leaps and bounds during the 19th Century. If agriculture was in a bad state and being exploited you would expect the price of farm land to go down, but the price of farm land went up rapidly. Certainly, the prices of farm products did go down. But they went down because the great fertile areas of the Middle West were being opened up and brought into production. Output was growing rapidly, the cost of producing farm crops was going down thanks to great technological innovation in the form of reapers and the other agricultural machinery that many of you know about, and the cost of transportation was falling. The result of this was a great out-pouring of production which produced a decline in the prices of farm products at the same time that it produced a very rapid rise in the incomes of farmers and induced many people to enter farming.

On a very different aspect of this experience, was it a period of heartless monopoly capitalism? Strange to say, it was the greatest period of private eleemosynary activity in the history of the United States. The period of unrestrained rugged individualism was a period when the modern type of nonprofit community hospital was first established and developed. It was the period of the Carnegie Libraries and their spread through the philanthropy of Andrew Carnegie. It was the period when so many colleges were founded throughout the country in the Middle West. Rockford College was founded in 1847, somewhat before the main period I am speaking about, but it reflected exactly the same tendency. This was a period of the founding of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and the spread of foreign missions. There was no income tax, no deductibility of contributions from income tax, so what people spent on charity came out of their pocket and not, as now, largely out of taxes they would otherwise pay. And yet—or should I say because—in every aspect of private charitable eleemosynary activity, it was a boom period.

So, I believe that the generally accepted historical picture of the 19th Century is an extraordinary myth. Years ago I wrote a book with a collaborator on the monetary history of the United States. In the course of writing the book I read a great many of the general histories of the 19th Century. As an economist, I was simply appalled by the level of ignorance of economic matters that was displayed in those history books, by the extent to which the historians were willing to take the cries and the claims of reformers and political agitators for reality. Everybody, of course, always wants to improve his lot. Everybody would like to see the price of the things he sells go up, and the price of things he buys go down. But since what one man sells another man buys, that's hardly a feasible situation. We find the same inconsistency today when people talk about inflation. What people mean by inflation is not the rise in their own wages but the rise in the prices other people are charging them. And that was the case in the 19th Century. The people who were in the Greenback and the Populist movement were saying, "we want to do still better," but the historians tended to take their exaggerated objections for reality.

That's myth Number 1, a myth which has done enormous harm, in my opinion, by leading people not to recognize the true sources of the strength of this country and the true origins of our greatness.

Voice of the people

To the Editor:

America has taken another step backward. Should I say "has taken" or rather should I say "were shoved"? I think both would be proper for by our acts we were shoved into the step we took.

It all began with Korea... for then we started fighting undeclared wars. Every act we took, every thing we did became political. Gone was any pretense of patriotism, any feeling of indebtedness or respect to our country and its flag. Politicians took over every aspect of our lives professing great love and understanding of all the peoples and lands of the world when in fact they (or most of them) could care less for anyone or anything except lining their pockets. Government has become big business without a conscience.

We have finally found that we can not impose our will, our beliefs on others of the world by the mere waving of the big stick or flashing dollar bills before them. Know why? Because today we have neither. Along with everything else that the politicians have cost us is our position of strength, not just from a military standpoint but from a solid based dollar as well.

We have no more intellectual leaders. We have no more Roosevelts, Bradleys, Doolittles, Eisenhowers or Halseys left. I haven't heard of one military leader who was fit to carry their shoes. Our country is run by men and women of the same caliber.

Every election we see the same old, tired, rundown, worn-out people running for office. In the last 25 years or so we have had the same six or eight men run for the Presidency—and the same is true all down the line to local elections. Surely in all the 280,000,000 people of this nation there have to be enough good men and women to give us a greater choice than the pompous, greedy few that we see all the time.

We have a Supreme Court that has tied the hands of the law, that condones pornography, that promotes abortions, that banished any mention of God or Jesus from schools and has granted and increased our "freedoms" to the point that Jane Fonda, Mrs. Abzug and fanciful politicians can consort with the enemy then come home and preach hate on our campuses, march and burn our flag. The constitution has something to say about penalties for desecrating our flag but again those in power have failed to fulfill their obligation to the majority and have looked the other way.

By these acts we have lost a third way—and more importantly—we have lost all respect for our beliefs because of this. This is one instance of misinterpreting the laws and the constitution to suit the times.

I say let those who fled the country in time of battle return for they have done nothing more harmful to this country than have the politicians or so-called dogooders. They ran but they ran because of the preachings and teachings of the times. It has been a long time since we truly had a leader in any sense. Who did they have to lead them?

Everywhere you turn you bump into a corrupt politician or police officer of some kind and yet the people sit on their hands and think it couldn't possibly be anyone in such a respected office... no it couldn't be. And they are the ones who interpret the laws and pass judgment. Is it any wonder that with so little care or thought to the installation of such people that we are in the shape we're in?

The biggest loss of all is in our spiritual image abroad. No longer can we play "holier than thou" without backing it up.

The 30-minute programs appear weekly on 240 public broadcasting stations and offer tactics and techniques for the dollar-conscious consumer. The following column is an excerpt from a chapter of "Consumer Survival Kit," Praeger Publishers. Dorfman is a free lance writer and a former editor at "Consumer Reports.")

By JOHN DORFMAN
How do you turn theories of good nutrition into a reality without tearing your pocketbook to shreds? A few key techniques of supermarket strategy are:

- Use store brands.
- Buy in large quantities.
- Go after true bargains.
- Read the labels.
- Check unit prices.

Store brands aren't always cheaper than "name" brands of canned or frozen goods, but they usually are. They may taste just as good as better-known brands; the only way to know is to try. The savings can be considerable.

Next, consider increasing the quantities in which you purchase your food. A lot of items are cheaper if purchased by the dozen, keg, sack, barrel or box instead of one portion at a time. Buy large cans, if you can possibly use them. Go after true bargains and resist the siren lures of the store's display and packaging practices. Do shop the ads and pay attention to sales. The store may take a loss on an advertised item to bring you in. But the items displayed most alluringly once you're there are probably those on which they have the fattest markup. For bargains, reach up or down or look in the corners.

Read the labels. This may seem like an obvious or even insulting injunction. But the fact is too many shoppers don't. And even people who do read labels don't always know how to take full advantage of what's printed there. Take a can or package of "mushroom soup." A lot of people assume that the law requires one of its main ingredients to be mushrooms. That's not so, although the laws are moving in that direction and maybe we'll get there some day. For the time being, it's possible to pick up a package of mushroom soup like the one we encountered recently. It sold for $2.99 a pound, a little arithmetic told us. And on the side of the box, the ingredients were listed. Spray-dried vegetable fat came first. That's made up of quite a batch of things — vegetable fat, corn syrup solids, sodium caseinate, mono- and diglycerides, dipotassium phosphate, sodium silico aluminate and artificial flavor and color. After that came 10 more ingredients, including salt and vegetable gum. Then, way down at the bottom, were dehydrated mushrooms and caramel color.

What some people don't realize is that manufacturers are required to list ingredients in descending order, according to the weights of each ingredient contained in the product. What you see first is what you get most of. So a more accurate name for the mixture described above would have been not mushroom soup but spray-dried vegetable fat soup.

Reading labels not only tells you the ingredients in order of weight, it also gives you the nutritional information. Under rules promulgated by the Food and Drug Administration, any food processor or packager that makes nutritional claims or that adds nutrients to a product must provide nutritional information on the product's label.

This information follows a standard format. First comes the size of one serving or portion. Then, the number of portions in the container. After that come the number of calories per portion; then the amount of protein, carbohydrate and fat in each portion expressed in grams. (It doesn't really matter if you're unfamiliar with metric measurements. The point of the information is really to let you compare the portions of the nutrients in the product and to let you compare one brand's nutritional merits against another's.)

Following that basic information, the label will give the product's percentage of the United States recommended daily allowance (RDA) of various vitamins and minerals. The RDA — set by the National Academy of Sciences — is the daily intake of each nutrient that is believed to be desirable for from 95 to 99 per cent of the population.

The label must tell you what percentage of this recommended level the product in question will provide for each of eight nutrients: protein, vitamin A, vitamin C, thiamin, riboflavin, niacin, calcium and iron. If, for example, the label says "riboflavin . . . 10," that means one serving of the product provides 10 per cent of the riboflavin you need for the day.

A final element in successful supermarket strategy is using unit pricing. The way unit pricing works varies from place to place. Some states require it;

others only encourage it. Where it's required, the regulations often apply only to stores that do a certain volume of business. Regardless of the situation in your state, you certainly have the prerogative of making your own requirement — shopping only at stores that do offer this service.

Unit pricing is an answer to the dilemma shoppers have faced for years: the jumble of odd package sizes, weights and prices. Which is better, 165 square feet of "Super Soak" paper towels for 38 cents or 18 square feet of "Wonder Wipe" towels for 45 cents? The problem is compounded by the fact that this sort of annoying arithmetic must be repeated time and again. There are some 59 different sizes of cookies, 16 sizes of cereal, 9 sizes of laundry soap.

Enter unit pricing. On the shelf, underneath those paper towels, you'll find a unit price label. It tells you the price per 100 square feet. For this standard quantity, Super Soaks are 23 cents. Wonder Wipes 25 cents. Now you know that Super Soaks are cheaper, so you buy them, unless there's a difference in quality that outweighs the price difference (c) 1975 by Praeger Publishers, Inc., New York, N.Y.

Youth wins Ag award

Rusty Klavenga, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl O. Miller, Franklin Grove, was recently named winner of the 1975 DeKalb Agricultural Accomplishment Award. The award, sponsored by DeKalb Ag Research, Inc., is presented to the outstanding senior in vocational agriculture departments around the country. He was chosen for the award on the basis of his scholarship, leadership and supervised farming program.

Rusty attends Franklin Center High School, where he has been vice president of the local FFA chapter for two years. He has also been very active in sports. His agriculture program consists of agriculture placement, working full time on the Earl Miller farm.

Following graduation Rusty plans to work on his father's farm a while longer and look for a farm of his own. As this year's DeKalb Accomplishment Award winner, Rusty's name will be inscribed along with previous winners on a special honors plaque provided by DeKalb Ag Research, Inc. DeKalb is a leading supplier of hybrid seeds, poultry and swine breeding stock and livestock marketing services.

Officials search for historical trees

A search for famous and historic trees in Illinois is now underway, reports T. W. Curtin, University of Illinois Extension forester.

Illinois is cooperating with the American Forestry Association in a nationwide search for trees to be included in a bicentennial publication "Famous and Historic Trees of the United States." Anyone knowing of an exceptional tree, or one associated with an interesting anecdote, is asked to notify Curtin or H. F. Siemert at the Division of Forestry in Springfield.

Categories for nominations include trees associated: With notable people; with the development of the nation; with eminent educators or educational institutions; with art or artists; with literature or writers; with law, science, music or cultural development of the state; with distinctive scenic or aesthetic locations; and with early forestry or conservation movements within Illinois.

However, all recommended trees will be considered, says Curtin. They do not necessarily have to fit into these categories. The 17 national Big Tree Champions which grow in Illinois will be suggested.

Nominations should be in writing and contain the location of the tree plus the story connected with it or why it is of special interest. Nomination forms and additional information are available from: T. W. Curtin, 211 Mumford Hall, Urbana, Ill. 61801; or from: H. F. Siemert, Department of Conservation, Division of Forestry, 605 State Office Building, Springfield, Ill. 62706.

Waste regulations for livestock may begin

Livestock Waste Regulations are expected to go into effect in Illinois by mid-1975, according to Russell T. Odell, member of the Illinois Pollution Control Board.

Speaking at the recent Third International Symposium on Livestock Wastes at the University of Illinois, Odell said the Board is awaiting a letter from the administrator of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency approving the Illinois Livestock Waste Regulations.

The economic impact of controlling pollution from livestock feedlots may cause a decrease in the number of small livestock enterprises, an accelerated shift to confinement production systems, and a shift of enterprises to drier climates, Odell pointed out.

The long-range impact on supply of livestock products and costs to the consumer are expected to be small. However, the economic impact during the adjustment period may be rather severe — especially for some smaller livestock producers.

Illinois Livestock Waste Regulations center on handling, storage, and field application of livestock wastes.

The regulations specify that existing and new livestock facilities be constructed to prevent surface water from flowing through feedlots. And runoff must be directed to disposal or storage areas.

In addition, limits on the location of new livestock facilities with regard to surface waters, flood plains, unsatisfactory soil conditions, and population centers are also covered in the regulations, noted Odell.

The regulations establish a permit system under which livestock operators who house more than one-thousand animal units for 30 or more days a year are required to have a National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System Permit.

Any of the following represents one-thousand animal units: 1,000 cattle; 700 mature dairy cows; 2,500 hogs over 55 pounds; 10,000 sheep; 30,000 layers with liquid manure; or 100,000 layers with continuous overflow waterer.

Smaller operations are not required to have a permit unless the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (for those with 100 to 1,000 animal units) or the Pollution Control Board (for those with less than 100 animal units) determine that the facility is violating or threatening to violate the regulations.

The achievement of pollution abatement will involve action and understanding by many people, said Odell. Farmers and representatives of public agencies have been cooperatively involved in the development of these regulations, Odell said. And he called for continued support and cooperation in implementing the regulations.

Methodist UMW meeting

The first United Methodist Church UMW met Thursday in the church parlor when Mrs. William Wolf, president, opened the meeting with prayer, and the program chairman, Mrs. Melvin Hartzell, introduced Mrs. George Holland who presented devotions on the program topic, "Social Concerns." Her material was based on excerpts from the book, "It's Been One of Those Days, Lord."

Special music included two cornet solos by Bradley Gerdes, who was accompanied by his sister, Miss Diane Gerdes, and the afternoon's program on "Social Concerns for the Modern Christian," was presented by Dr. Robert W. Schumm, pastor of the church.

Mrs. Wolf presided during a business session, which included reports and three recommendations from the UMW Mission Team, and the birthdays of Dr. Schumm and Mrs. Katherine LeFevre were observed.

UMW members are invited to

Polly's Pointers

Polly's Problem
DEAR POLLY — I would like some suggestions for using various kinds and colors of yarn left from making pictures and pillows. The yarn is already cut into usable lengths. It cannot be used for crocheting unless pieced for covering wire coat hangers. Hope to get some help.—ELVA.

DEAR ELVA — I am sure the readers will be sending suggestions for using your short lengths of yarn. They are always so clever about utilizing anything and everything.—POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — Recently I discovered how useful a double boiler is for heating leftovers. Leftover mashed potatoes can be so dry and are hard to reheat and taste nothing like freshly mashed ones. Well, just add some butter, put potatoes in pan over boiling water. They are so delicious my family cannot tell the difference. This works with other foods and also makes a great bun warmer.—MRS. R.C.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is noise pollution on radio and television, especially the commercials that are so loud. They keep shouting at us to buy this or that and all kinds of drugs and aspirin. If you do not have a headache you will have one by the time the commercial is over and then will need two aspirin. I refuse to take anything or buy anything that I have heard shouted about. I do wish they would tone all those commercials down to soothe our nerves. "Easy does it."—M.M.

DEAR POLLY — Attractive children's books are easy to make out of old scraps of material. Cut the edges of fabric squares with pinkish shears. Cut pictures the child will like out of magazines, glue one to each piece of material. Last but not least, stitch the pieces together and have a nice book for young children. This is my idea and I am only 12.—KAREN.

DEAR KAREN — Thank you for sharing your idea. You are indeed a clever girl to have come up with this Pointer.—POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — I vacuum every week but my cleaner does not pick up long hairs, thread and fuzz that are in my shag rug. To solve this problem I now comb out such particles with my steel bristle wig comb and then vacuum and my rug looks surprisingly clean and new looking.—MISS D.T.

DEAR POLLY — I found that buying a "fatigue" mat to put in front of my kitchen sink was psychologically distressful because of the name "fatigue." I replaced mine with a "Welcome" mat normally used outside a front door. It is hard rubber with grooves in it. When water is splashed from the sink it lands in the grooves instead of being tracked all over the floor. Needless to say I enjoy seeing a "Welcome" in my kitchen.—MRS. M.B.

DEAR POLLY — When making a dress or blouse I never sew the underarm seams together until after I have the sleeves in. I can match the notches better and also any gathering on the sleeve is more even. This is good for beginning sewers.—VIOLEA.

You will receive a dollar if Polly uses your favorite home-making idea, Pet Peeve, Polly's Problem or solution to a problem. Write Polly in care of this newspaper. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Anniversary open house

STERLING — Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Miatke and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Walck will host an open house from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday in the Miatke home, 1612 17th Ave., Sterling, in honor of the 50th wedding anniversary of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph R. Miatke.

The former Miss Mildred Bellows and Mr. Miatke were married May 10, 1925 in the parsonage of the Fourth Street Methodist Church, Sterling, by the Rev. Fred Ingoistad, and they are parents of two children. They also have eight grandchildren, and five great-grandchildren.

Friends and relatives of the honored couple are invited to attend the observance of their anniversary.

Country Club dinner-bridge

The season's first meeting for the Dixon Country Club's Couples Bridge is planned for Thursday in the clubhouse when a 7 p.m. dinner will precede bridge at 8 p.m.

All club members are invited, and Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Hershberger are serving as May chairmen.

Reservations are to be made by contacting the clubhouse, 284-2857.

PEO Chapter to entertain husbands

Members of Chapter KM, PEO Sisterhood, will entertain their husbands at a party planned for Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. Warren Walder, 503 Bradshaw St., following a chapter business meeting at 7:45 p.m. Hostesses for the B.I.L. party will be Mrs. Walder and Mrs. Richard Lovett.

Lutheran circle meetings

Ruth Circle of St. Paul Lutheran Church will meet at 2 p.m. Thursday in the church Fireside Room when co-hostesses will be Mrs. Clyde Carson and Mrs. John Grobe.

A meeting for Rachel Circle is also planned for 7:30 p.m. Thursday with Mrs. Richard Thomas, 1024 Mary Ave., when Mrs. Norman Daraska will direct the study lesson.

PWP Chapter

Mrs. Connie James, 424 Fourth Ave., will entertain the Dixon Chapter, Parents Without Partners, at 7:30 p.m. Thursday when a skit entitled "Small Talk" will be presented by Donald Schiltz, Mrs. Joan Spencer and their assistants.

Homemakers news

By FRANCES G. REEVES
Lee Co. Extension Adviser
During May, health organizations and agencies at local, state and national levels are focusing attention on Public Health Enemy No. 1.

Dr. Lawrence O'Reilly, University of Illinois Extension health educator, reports that an estimated 23 million Americans are victims of this disorder. About half of this number aren't aware of their problem. One reason is that this condition usually causes no symptoms. That is, until it leads to serious damage in the body.

It will be directly responsible for about 60,000 deaths this year. Indirectly it will be implicated in many of the two million strokes expected in 1975. During that same period, Public Health Enemy No. 1 will be a major contributor to 600,000 heart disease deaths and 60,000 fatalities from kidney disease.

If you haven't guessed by now, hypertension (high blood pressure) is Public Enemy No. 1. Approximately one-half of the people who have high blood pressure do not realize they have it. As many as one-half of these who know they are hypertensive are not under treatment for their condition. Two million people will suffer strokes this year and an estimated 200,000 of these victims will die. High blood pressure is the leading cause of strokes. According to O'Reilly, three basic steps are necessary for controlling the problem:

1. Get your blood pressure checked and understand what the numbers mean. Even children can have the disease and therefore blood pressure checks are important for all ages.

2. If your blood pressure is high, team up with a physician to get it under control. A doctor may recommend medication and related treatments including losing weight, using less salt, and engaging in moderate exercise.

3. If you know you have high blood pressure, but have stopped following a physician's directions, it is important to get back under care and to resume treatment. This way the disorder can be kept under control.

Contrary to popular belief, high blood pressure (hypertension) does not usually cause symptoms such as headaches, dizziness, and flushed face. In fact, most victims experience no noticeable signs that indicate the nature of their problem. Because of this, an estimated one-half of our 23 million hypertensives aren't aware that they have the disorder.

If permitted to go unchecked, high blood pressure can cause serious damage to the brain, heart, and kidneys. It is a leading contributor to strokes, heart disorders, and kidney failures. Have you had your blood pressure checked lately?

The American Heart Association says that it is up to you to help your doctor control your blood pressure by checking to:

1. Have your blood pressure checked to find out if you have high blood pressure.

2. If you do have high blood pressure, follow medical advice about taking medicine and changing your diet and health habits.

3. Keep taking your medicine as long as the doctor says, whether you feel well or not.

4. Cooperate. You and the medical team must work together in order to get your blood pressure under control.

Dear Ann

by Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: With your extensive coverage why don't you make more of an effort to educate people to the dangers of depression? If you printed a list of famous people who have had severe bouts of depression it would read like Who's Who.

Newspapers are full of stories about suicides and homicides. Lord alone knows how many deaths from "natural causes" were actually planned in advance.

The symptoms of depression are not always the obvious ones. In fact some depressed people can put on a very good front. The things to look for are changes in personality, sleeping habits, unjustified accusations, feelings of being persecuted and abnormal hostility. People who suddenly show these traits need medical attention.

I needn't tell you, Miss Landers, that there aren't enough psychiatrists to go around. Also, many medical doctors don't know how to recognize the signs of depression. They could use some refresher courses.

There are excellent drugs available that can help lift people out of depressions. A relative of mine who was very nearly non-functional is now on a drug that has made it possible for her to go to work every day and be a wife and mother.

Please enlighten the unenlightened.—Up With People

Dear Up: Everything you say is true, but I must caution my readers against believing that a drug can cure depression. Medication can be very helpful in getting a depressed person through a crisis, but to depend on drugs as a way of life is merely masking the symptoms and it does nothing to solve the problem.

For individuals who experience radical personality changes or go into emotional tailspins, I recommend first a thorough physical examination to make sure there is no organic or neurological problem. Then, if the doctor suggests drugs to help, I would say, "Fine, go ahead." Drugs CAN get the patient through the difficult period, but stick to the prescribed dosage and quit when the doctor says, "No more."

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I are desperate for an answer. YOUR kind of answer. Short and to the point. What can we say when our two children, ages 22 and 24, say, "You had us. Now take care of us."

We don't know how to respond. We were unusually generous when we had very little for ourselves; now they expect us to continue and it's very difficult. Please advise.—Stumped For An Answer

Dear Stumped: A couple of "kids" 22 and 24 need more than a short, pointed answer. They need a swift kick out into the world, which is what they should have had a long time ago.

Tell your two parasites that a birth certificate is not a lifetime guarantee that insures perpetual care. God helps those who help themselves.

Dear Ann Landers: We are in a terrible spot. Can you advise us? My husband's sister's daughter is being married on the same day that my own sister's son is being married. These two never got along and they haven't spoken in years. They live 100 miles apart. The invitations came on the same day. What should we do?—Spitsville

Dear Split: Do just that. Split. You go to your nephew's wedding and let your husband go to his niece's wedding.

Thinking after trick two wasted

By Oswald & James Jacoby
South took a long time to bid his hand. When he finally bid six notrump he felt that he might be missing a grand slam, but that anyone should be happy about collecting the rubber and small-slam bonus.

He also took a long time to play the hand. At least he wasted a lot of time worrying about split milk after he had chucked the whole thing at trick two.

Trick one was easy. He won in dummy. Then he led a low club and went up with the king after East followed with the five spot. West showed out and there was no way for South to win 12 tricks.

A careful player would have done his thinking before playing to the second trick. He would have seen that four club tricks would have been enough for the slam since there were eight top tricks in the other suits. He would also have seen that he would have no problem if the clubs broke 2-2 or 3-1.

After this preliminary thought he would have led the same low club from dummy.

East would have followed with that same five spot and careful South would have put on the eight, not the king. This would be quite likely to cost him a 20-point overtrick, but what is 20 points against about 1,500?

Upturn in cattle prices to continue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prices of grain-fed cattle have gone up about 50 per cent from their depressed levels of last winter and livestock economists in the Agriculture Department say the uptick probably will continue for several more weeks.

"That doesn't mean we won't see some back and forth movement," George Hoffman of the department's Economic Research Service told a reporter. "But it looks now like these prices will peak out in late May or early June."

Last week some choice-grade steers sold in Omaha for more than $48 per 100 pounds, compared with a low range of $30 to $32 per hundredweight in February and early March.

On a quarterly basis, Omaha choice steer prices in January-March averaged $35.72 per 100 pounds, the lowest in more than three years.

If the higher trend in fed cattle prices continues a while as USDA thinks, prices could exceed the 1974 peaks of around $49 per 100 pounds set briefly last summer before they declined precipitously through most of the fall and winter.

Hoffman said that if farmers and ranchers have ample forage supplies from pastures and ranges it looks now as if cattle prices will hold up fairly well through the remainder of this year despite anticipated declines from current levels.

But if feed supplies dry up, he said, that could force many more cattle to market prematurely and cause the market to break much more sharply than now expected.

Department experts do not foresee a quick buildup in feedlot cattle numbers, however. Inventories of grain-fed cattle have shrunk the past year or so because of high feed costs in relation to market prices.

As of April 1, for example, feedlot inventories in 23 major beef producing states totaled fewer than 8.5 million head, down 31 per cent from a year earlier and 37 per cent below April 1, 1973.

But so many cows and other cattle not fattened on grain have been marketed the past year that total beef production has been at record levels.

In 1974, according to a new USDA review of meat production, beef output totaled 23.1 billion pounds, a nine per cent gain from 1973. Veal output jumped 36 per cent to 486 million pounds, reflecting a big increase in calf slaughter.

The trend is continuing this year although at a somewhat lesser rate.

People in the news

LONDON (AP) — Elizabeth Taylor and companion Henry Wynberg, a Los Angeles car dealer, have left London for Leningrad, where she will resume work on the film "Bluebird of Happiness." The 43-year-old actress had a reunion with her three children — sons Christopher and Michael Wilding and daughter Liza Todd — when she came to Britain 10 days ago for treatment of a flu infection.

NEW YORK (AP) — Philippe Petit, who made headlines last summer by walking a tightrope between the 110-story towers of the World Trade Center, will make his New York circus debut Thursday in the Bicentennial Edition of the "Greatest Show on Earth" at Madison Square Garden.

The 25-year-old Frenchman, unhurt in his spectacular feat here and in similar walks between the towers of Notre Dame Cathedral in Paris and the towers of the Harbour Bridge in Sydney, Australia, recently recovered from injuries suffered in a fall last January while rehearsing with the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The sun came out long enough on a rainy Sunday for President Ford to play a round of golf at Burning Tree Golf Club in Bethesda, Md., with his two half-brothers and a family friend.

Joining the President were Dr. James Ford, Richard Ford and John Vander Meiden, all visiting the White House from Grand Rapids, Mich.

At the annual dinner of the White House Correspondents

Association which he and Mrs. Ford attended Saturday night, the President quipped that the White House is being given a new coat of paint — guaranteed to be leak-proof.

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy said President Ford "is a very decent, warm human being, but just not providing the leadership" the United States needs. However, the Massachusetts Democrat did not suggest anyone else who might do the job better.

ERA gets No. 1 priority from new commission

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new national commission to observe 1975 as International Women's Year is planning to work for adoption of the Equal Rights Amendment but ERA supporters say 1977 is the earliest the amendment could be approved.

"The ERA is our No. 1 priority," said Rep. Margaret Heckler, R-Mass., who with TV-film star Alan Alda heads the commission's study group on the ERA.

"International Women's Year is not going to be able to accomplish the ratification of the ERA itself but hopefully will help it," she said.

"I think we have to raise money for the ERA because a great deal of propaganda has been distributed at tremendous expense to spread around myths and it takes money to contradict them," she said.

In addition, she said in an interview, the commission intends to find ways to reach out to women not traditionally thought to be supporters of the feminist movement, to convince them the ERA will help them.

"I'm talking about factory workers as well as garden club ladies, teachers and legislators," she said.

The ERA would amend the Constitution to ban sex discrimination.

The Illinois House last week approved the ERA which now goes to the state Senate. However, most ERA supporters concede the amendment is in trouble, with ratification unlikely before 1977.

North Dakota this year became the 34th state to ratify the ERA. That total includes Tennessee and Nebraska, although legislatures in those two states later voted to rescind their ratifications.

The approval of four more states is needed prior to March 1979 before the amendment can be adopted.

Five state legislatures rejected it this spring.

If 38 states eventually ratify the amendment, Congress then would have to decide whether to count Tennessee and Nebraska as part of the total. Legislatures in both states first ratified the amendment but then subsequently voted to rescind that ratification.

Some constitutional specialists contend a state's duty expires upon ratification and that there is no provision for undoing that action.

Rep. Heckler and Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., said they saw no likelihood Congress would permit a rescission. While the rescission question is being debated in Congress, the search for more ratifying votes in the remaining states could continue until the March 1979 deadline.

Pat Keefer, ERA coordinator for Common Cause, said there were remote chances that some states could ratify the ERA in 1976 but she said those states are the same ones where legislatures either blocked it or didn't take action this year.

Let's Talk About Decorating
By BEVERLEY CAPON
The Living Room

(Part Five of our series on arrangements)

I like to believe that the living room is perhaps the most interesting room to arrange, because it must serve so many needs, accommodate so many people, and ideally should be flexible enough to please every member of the family. When there is a separate family room to handle some of the activities, the living room arrangement can be simple; however, if there is just the one living room and several age groups in the family, arranging becomes more complex. The placing of one key piece can affect the placement of all the rest of the furniture in the room.

If there is a desk in the living room, it should be located away from the main traffic pattern and be provided with proper and adequate lighting. Readers should have comfortable chairs, flanked with good reading lamps. If members of the family enjoy playing games, and attractive card table with four chairs can remain permanently in place, covered with a tea-cloth, it can be used for serving refreshments. A floor lamp tall enough to light the table surface is a practical accessory to this grouping.

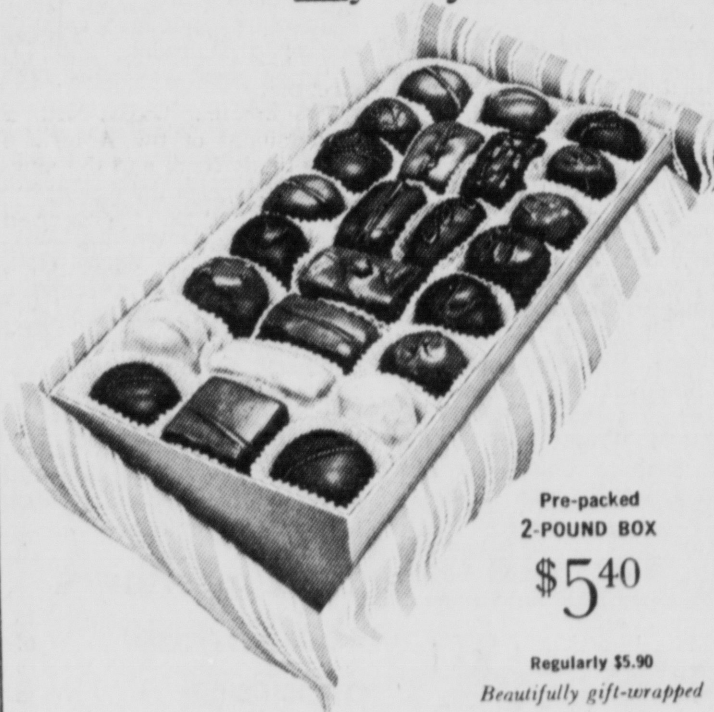

These are some of the things to keep in mind when you are planning furniture arrangement for the living room. Another thing to keep in mind is to visit our decorator rooms at Dunbar's and see what you need for your living room or for any room in your home. Come in soon.

City squad cars cost less with trade-in price

A news article in Saturday's Telegraph implied the purchase of seven Lee County squad cars was made at a cost lower than that of the City of Dixon in their purchase of squad cars.

The article referred to the net price of the county cars at $3,422 each with trade-ins and claimed the purchase was lower than the city was able to get through state central purchasing.

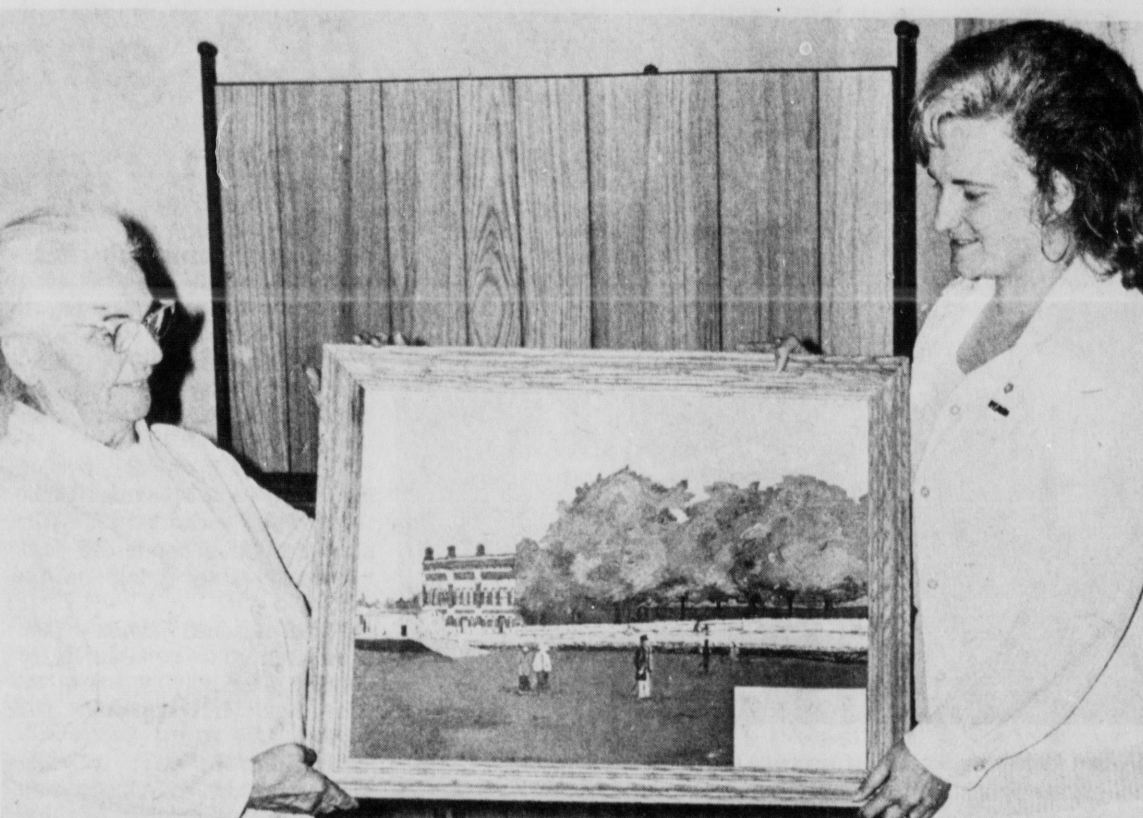

The higher price quoted from the city purchase was based on a cost per car without trade-in. With the trade-in price on the city cars, their per car cost figured out to be approximately $3,000, more than $400 less than the county transaction. The Telegraph regrets the discrepancy.

Driver nabbed after accident

Charles Wessels, 21, 1820 W. First St., was cited by Dixon police following an accident in the 1800 block of W. First Street.

Wessels was charged with failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident.

Radio theft is probed

Lee County Sheriff's Deputies were called Monday to investigate the theft of a two-way FM radio taken from a road grader at Woodhaven Lakes.

Robert Houck, an employee of Lawrence and Sons, a contractor from Rock Falls, discovered the theft and reported it to authorities. The radio was believed to have been taken from the Wabco Road Grader sometime between Friday and Monday when it was discovered missing. Forced entry was made to the grader by breaking the door to the vehicle's cab.

The grader was parked near section 9, lot 75 at the time of the theft. The radio unit was reportedly valued at $1,000.

The

Senior Party Line

Who is eligible for this tax relief? How soon can they apply, and what are the procedures?—J.G.
Dear Mr. G:

Any individual who is 65 or older, or who is disabled, and has an annual household income of less than $10,000, should apply for the benefits of this program. Of course, you must be a resident of Illinois at the time you file a claim.

This program will provide annual cash grants ranging from $50 to $100, depending on income. The original intent of the bill was to provide a rebate for sales tax dollars spent on food, fuel, clothing and medicine.

In order to apply for these grants, you must fill out the same form that has been used for the past three years to apply for "circuit breaker" benefits—a tax relief program for elderly and disabled home owners and renters. Don't be confused by the title of the form, which says "Senior Citizens and Disabled Persons Property Tax Relief." The benefits are available to renters as well as to those who own homes. And the $50 to $100 grants will be available to virtually any senior or disabled person in Illinois whose household income is less than $10,000. About 500,000 households in the state should be aware of this new tax relief program, for they are eligible.

Application forms can be obtained from the Department of Revenue (1-800-252-8972 toll-free) or you can call the Senior Action Center HOTLINE. Forms can also be found in many local government offices, from Area Agencies on Aging, in banks, and through senior citizens' organizations. Renters can apply immediately. Home owners must wait until they receive their 1974 tax bills. (The tax bill is not used to calculate the "sales tax" grant, but it is needed to determine whether or not you qualify for regular circuit breaker benefits.)

Who are some of the people who are not eligible for circuit breaker grants but who can receive the new $50 to $100 grants?—E. B.
Dear Mrs. B:

Residents of public housing, and residents of nursing homes which are tax-exempt, may not apply for circuit breaker grants. Elderly or disabled persons who live with children and do not pay rent may not apply for the circuit breaker, either. All of these people should now make application for cash grants under the new program. It will still be necessary to use the old forms, though. This is a particularly important point: there are thousands of Illinoisans who have used this form in the past. Many of them have discovered that they were ineligible to file an application. Others found out that even though they could apply for tax relief, they were entitled to no grant because of the formula involved. None of these persons should be discouraged from using the same form to seek benefits under the new program for which they will be eligible.

I rent an apartment, and I have already sent in my circuit breaker form for 1974. What must I do to get the new grant?—M. H.
Dear Mr. H:

Nothing. The Department of Revenue will run a computer check on all renters whose circuit breaker applications have already been processed. The additional grants will be mailed automatically. The program is being set up so that elderly and disabled persons will apply for both the circuit breaker and the new grant at the same time and on the same form. It should be understood, however, that the grants made will in many instances actually stem from two sources—the "property tax" relief aspect of the regular circuit breaker and the new program which thousands of older Illinoisans have come to identify with "sales tax" rebates.

I understand the tax relief bill also made some changes in existing law which apply to renters only. What are they?—E. G.
Dear Mr. G:

This change has nothing to do with the new grant program but with the pre-existing circuit breaker program. Under that program, renters have been allowed to count 25 per cent of their annual rent as the equivalent of property taxes when filing a claim. In other words, if a person paid $125 a month in rent ($1,500 a year), 25 per cent of that, or $375, would be used as the equivalent of property taxes and would be plugged into a formula to determine the amount of the grant. The bill just signed into law increases the allowable percentage from 25 to 30 per cent. The person above would be allowed to count $450 of his annual rent as the equivalent of property taxes. This change will mean increased circuit breaker grants for renters. It will also make more renters eligible for grants. This increase in benefits applies to the tax years 1974 and beyond. However, since most renters have already submitted applications for 1974, the increased benefits will be paid retroactively in 1976. Renters need not do anything more than fill out the forms as they always have. The Department of Revenue will compute the amount of the grant, as well as calculate the retroactive benefits. You can leave the mathematics to them!

People may call the toll-free Senior Action Hotline 800-252-6565 with questions or complaints about government agencies or programs or for information about tax relief, health care, food stamps, Social Security, employment, housing or legal aid.

Making believers of the people

The Cubs become winners

CHICAGO (AP) — A funny thing happened to the lowly Chicago Cubs on the way to Wrigley Field from a horrible spring in Arizona. They became instant winners.

"I guess we're making believers out of a lot of people all around," said Manager Jim Marshall after the Cubs boosted to 15-6 their first-place record in the National League East over the weekend.

"Sure, we're getting what we need, when we need it — especially hitting and great relief pitching, but we don't think it's luck as much as constantly working on fundamentals."

"It would be foolish to be even thinking pennant after one month of play, but the great thing about our fast start is that it's a tremendous lift to the confidence of our young players."

Last month's 12-5 record marked the club's best April since the 1945 Cubs posted 7-2 en route to the team's last pennant.

From what transpired in their Scottsdale, Ariz., camp, it appeared the Cubs might even fall out of last place which they clinched last season with a 66-96 mark, 22 games behind the NL East champion Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Cubs wound up with a 6-16 Cactus League record. Their pitchers were being bombed when they weren't complaining about lack of work. The team batted .249 and the pitchers had a collective 5.16 earned run average.

Pitching Coach Marv Grissom, installed by Marshall to spruce a questionable mound staff, ran into howling protest when he wouldn't let the pitchers work behind a screen at the slab.

Grissom figured the pitchers needed to learn how to field their positions more than they needed protection of their shins. Among many question marks, the biggest was whether the Cubs got fleeced in trading aging star Billy Williams to the Oakland A's for infielder Manny Trillo and relievers Darold Knowles and Bob Locker.

But Trillo and Knowles have been key factors in the surprising Cub surge.

When the Cubs pulled a typical rally to defeat the St. Louis Cardinals 8-6 Sunday, Knowles recorded his second save in two days and his fifth of the season. The cards got two runs to break Knowles' skein of scoreless innings and leave him with a 1.00 ERA for 18 innings.

As for Trillo, whose major league background was 38 games in two seasons with the A's, he entered this week batting .320 and has been making all the plays at second base.

"The improvement on the right side of our infield has been unbelievable," said Marshall. "Trillo has shown us all kinds of range."

Evenly-balanced power has been the real surprise, with 71 runs driven across in the first 21 games by Bill Madlock (18), Jerry Morales (16), Rick Monday (15), Jose Cardenal (11) and Trillo (11).

First-line pitching still is a Cub worry, with Steve Stone far and away the best stopper with 4-0 for his first four starts. Ray Burris had 3-0 for his first four starts, but Rick Reuschel was 1-2 after five starts and Bill Bonham 2-1 in five starts.

Burt Hooton, malcontented erstwhile starter, last weekend was traded to the Los Angeles Dodgers for Geoff Zahn, who immediately was given a starting assignment against the Cards Sunday but lasted only three innings.

Shortstop Don Kessinger, who has played under five Cub managers and Sunday became a 10-season club veteran, happily commented, "Of all the years, this has been the most enjoyable. This team just doesn't know when to quit."

Expos defeat Cubs 3-2

MONTREAL (AP) — Righthander Dennis Blair had trouble finding the plate but stumbled across a winning combination Monday night as the Montreal Expos held on to defeat the Chicago Cubs 3-2.

Blair, 1-3, issued several walks but gave up only four hits in his 6 2/3-innings and became the Expos' first righthanded winner of the season. Lefties Dave McNally and Woodie Fryman have three victories apiece.

Pepe Manguel's two-run home run in the third inning and Larry Parrish's solo shot in the sixth staked the Expos to a 3-0 lead, but four double plays in the first five innings were instrumental in keeping the erratic Blair in the game.

He came apart in the seventh, when the Cubs got one run on pinch-hitter Adrian Garrett's ground ball and another on Blair's second wild pitch of the inning. Pete LaCock, who scored the first run, had reached on a walk, and a walk to pinch-hitter Andy Thornton brought Chuck Taylor out of the bullpen.

Taylor picked up his second save of the season with 2 1/3rd relief innings in which he gave up only a single to Jose Cardenal, the first batter he faced. Cardenal was thrown out trying to steal second and the play stranded Thornton at third.

"Cardenal was on his own," said Cubs' Manager Jim Marshall. "He's been on his own since spring training."

Cardenal defended the wisdom of his unsuccessful theft attempt. "That's the way we play. We play aggressive baseball. That's how we got to first place."

"We don't play for the tying run on the road. We go for the winning run."

The closest the Cubs came to the tying run after that was a long fly to right-center field by LaCock to lead off the ninth. Gary Carter hauled it down on the warning track and Taylor struck out Manny Trillo and Don Kessinger to end the game.

Cubs starter Ray Burris, 3-1, took the loss.

Weaver hooks the Catfish

By BRUCE LOWITT

AP Sports Writer

Earl Weaver knew how to hook the Catfish. He got the weatherman to throw out the line and reel him in.

For seven innings in Baltimore Monday night, Weaver's Orioles flailed away at Hunter's pitches. In all that time, all they could manage against him and the rest of the New York Yankees was four hits and one run.

It was clearly a time for a little strategy.

"We talked about it in the locker room before the game," said Bobby Grich, whose eighth-inning bunt—and Hunter's wild throw with it—helped the Orioles to their 3-1 victory. "Earl Weaver and his coaches reminded us that it had rained here all night Friday and again on Saturday night—that the field was very wet and to take advantage of it by laying down some bunts."

Paul Blair led off the eighth with a perfect bunt down the third base line. It was so well-placed that Hunter couldn't get to it. Grich then dumped a bunt in almost the same spot. Hunter got to the ball this time—and heaved it into right field. By the time it returned to the infield, Blair had crossed the plate with the tie-breaking run and Grich was sliding into third.

Hunter, 2-4, lost despite a six-hitter. Jim Palmer, 4-2, won with a five-hitter. He fanned seven Yanks and didn't walk any of them.

Rangers 4, Angels 3

Cesar Tovar's two-run single capped Texas' three-run burst in the eighth inning that beat the Angels and gave Ferguson Jenkins his fourth straight victory. Mike Hargrove's walk and singles by Jim Spencer and Roy Smalley brought in the Rangers' first run, they worked a double steal and Tovar singled to center.

Red Sox 7, Indians 5

Jim Rice's two-run double highlighted a four-run fourth inning that helped the Red Sox whip Cleveland. Bernie Carbo and Carl Yastrzemski drew walks and Fred Lynn hit the first of three consecutive run-scoring doubles. Rice then doubled, scoring Yastrzemski and Lynn, and Rice came home on Rico Petrocelli's double.

Cards 11, Phils 3

Luis Melendez and Mike Tyson hit two-run triples in a six-run first inning and Tyson, Reggie Smith and Ted Simmons added homers as the Cardinals, with Bob Gibson notching his first victory of the year, cruised past Philadelphia.

Dodgers 2, Astros 0

Doug Rau checked Houston on two hits as the Dodgers widened their National League West lead over idle Cincinnati to 2 1/2 games. Los Angeles' runs came on a first-inning sacrifice fly by Ron Cey and Joe Ferguson's third-inning single.

Derby win for Foolish Pleasure

A's cut Herb Washington

OAKLAND (AP) — Baseball never could quite accept Herb Washington.

"He's a great athlete, but he's not a baseball player," Reggie Jackson said early in the 1974 season about the track star who crashed the roster of the world champion Oakland A's.

Owner Charles O. Finley, who lured Washington off the pro track tour last year, didn't expect Washington to become a complete ballplayer.

"He's my designated stealer," said Finley, who delighted in Washington's 29 stolen bases last year but reluctantly put the 23-year-old former Michigan State sprinter on unconditional waivers Monday.

The A's have another pinch running specialist this year in Don Hopkins, a former Montreal Expos' farmhand who also can play the outfield. He has four stolen bases so far.

Washington, who got the news of his release from Finley personally in Chicago Sunday, said, "It wasn't my biggest disappointment. That was when I didn't make the Olympics in 1972."

Finley said there's a possibility Washington, who had two steals in three attempts this season, will get another shot with the A's, late this year or next season, assuming no other major league team claims him. Washington said he'll return to pro track now.

"I'd feel sorry for him if he were a player," said A's captain Sal Bando, with no malice intended.

Washington made friends in the clubhouse — teammates even gave him a glove and bat to dress up his locker—but they considered his presence mostly as something between a danger and a joke.

"I don't think he should be used in the World Series," Bando said during last fall's confrontation with the National League champion Los Angeles Dodgers. "If he costs us a game in the regular season, there may be 100 more games to make up for it, but not in the Series."

And in game No. 2 of the World Series, A's Manager Alvin Dark substituted Washington for a surprised Joe Rudi as the A's threatened to come from behind in the ninth inning. Dodger reliever Mike Marshall picked Washington off first base.

"The only embarrassing thing about that was that it happened before 60 million people watching on television," said former Dodgers star Maury Wills, who gave Washington a crash course in base running before the 1974 season.

But Herb Washington no doubt will be best remembered for that face-down moment in the Dodger Stadium dust.

"He contributed tremendously to the success of the ballclub in 1974," said Finley, who added that the off-season loss of pitching star Catfish Hunter hurt Washington's chances of staying with the A's.

Pitcher Roger Nelson was promoted from the minor leagues to take Washington's spot on the roster for tonight's game here against the California Angels.

Rosenbalm is honored

KENOSHA, Wis. — Two Carthage College basketball players have been named to the 1974-75 national All-Lutheran College Basketball squad.

Selected on the first team was Dave Rosenbalm, a 6-foot-6, 205-pound junior forward from Oregon. Picked for honorable-mention recognition was Carthage's 6-7 senior center, Jeff Koenitzer of Wauwatosa, Wis.

The "dream team" was selected by Bud Thies, St. Louis Globe-Democrat sportswriter, for the Lutheran Brotherhood Bond, published monthly by Lutheran Brotherhood, a Minneapolis-based fraternal insurance society.

Rosenbalm and Koenitzer guided Carthage to a second-place finish in the College Conference of Illinois and Wisconsin last season and a 17-7 overall mark after CCIW cage coaches had picked the Redmen to finish no higher than seventh place in the league.

Rosenbalm finished his junior season with a 23.4 scoring average and hauled down 327 rebounds in 22 games—tops on the team. Koenitzer averaged 14.1 points per game and had 256 rebounds in 24 games.

Lewis win

Jerry Lewis of Hoffman Estates won the 30-lap Late-Model stock car feature event at Rockford Speedway Saturday night.

It was the first win of the season for Lewis, who is the defending point champion at the northern Illinois circle-track. After starting the race in the middle of the 20-car field, Lewis almost lost the whole show when he locked bumpers with Jim Kersten of Janesville, Wis., causing a five-car chain reaction accident. Luckily Lewis' Camaro was not seriously damaged. He got back on the track, took the lead in the 27th lap and went on for his win over present point leader Wayne Swartwout of Janesville.

Action was fast and furious as Rockford's Dave Carpenter won his second consecutive event in the Road-Runner feature. Raymond Van Cleave of Janesville won the Consoy and his heat. Other heat wins went to Bruce Graham from Janesville and Dale Welter of Rockford.

Frosh triumph

Randy Donegan won the mile and the high jump events while Dixon swept the relay races to defeat Sterling 89-54 in a frosh track meet at A. C. Bowers Field on Monday.

Other individual winners for Dixon include Jim Mazrimas in the high hurdles, Mike Swinton in the 880, Bill Bolman in the low hurdles, John Snow in the 220, Brian Cox in the 440 and Paul Nusbaum in the discus.

Frosh are third

SAUK VALLEY — East Rockford rolled up 106 points to edge Sterling's 102 and capture the team title of the first annual Dixon High School frosh-soph track Invitational, here, Saturday.

Dixon got its only place showing by the two-mile relay squad and finished third with 70 points. Freeport was next with 62 followed by Belvidere 60 and Rochelle 50.

Eric Lohse, Jim Magnifico, Mike Swinton and Randy Demegan combined their talents in the two-mile run to post a winning time of 8:40. Dixon got seconds in the 1,000-yard run and the pole vault; thirds in the long jump 440-yard relay, high jump and distance medley; fourths in the high hurdle shuttle, triple jump and mile relay plus fifths in the discus, mile medley, low hurdle shuttle and 800 relay.

Bulls, Bullets have 2-1 advantage in NBA playoffs

OAKLAND (AP) — The scoring fireworks of the Chicago Bulls-Golden State Warriors playoff battle have moved from the frontcourt to the backcourt. Norm Van Lier, Bulls guard, took the scoring pressure off forwards Bob Love and Chet Walker in game No. 3 Sunday in Chicago. His team leads 2-1 in the National Basketball Association Western Conference finals going into tonight's fourth game here.

"Norm did what he had to do," said Chicago Coach Dick Motta. "He penetrated the middle and got our offense going."

On defense, reserve center Nate Thurmond was the key,

Motta said. The former Golden State star was effective in shutting off driving efforts by guards Butch Beard and Charlie Johnson, forward Rick Barry and other Warriors.

"The coach told me to take care of the middle and allow only one shot. And luckily, our guys were hitting," said Thurmond.

Van Lier hit for 35 points and Jerry Sloan added 15 from the backcourt. Love and Walker settled for 19 each.

In the series opener here nine days ago, Barry scored 38 points to lead the Warriors to a 107-89 victory, with Love's 37 points saving the Bulls from complete embarrassment. Van Lier and Sloan had 14 points combined.

In game No. 2 at Chicago, Walker and Love were the Bulls' top scorers and Barry again led Golden State, with 26 points.

But a shot Barry missed, a shot he realizes he never should have taken, is still the talk of the NBA series.

"We got a game back we seemingly had lost," Thurmond said, and his former teammate Barry was the first to admit he "just took a dumb shot."

Barry left his feet, found no one to pass to and fired up a shot with 11 second left in the game and the Warriors ahead 89-88. The Bulls took advantage of the unexpected gift and won 90-89 on Tom Boerwinkle's lay-up in the final seconds.

Tonight and Thursday night, the Bulls will be out to improve on their all-time playoff road record of 2-25. Victories on the Warriors' court would make game No. 6, which would be played over the weekend in Chicago, unnecessary.

Celtics-Bullets
BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics were scheduled to take in a movie today before flying to Maryland for Wednesday's National Basketball Association playoff game against the Washington Bullets at Landover.

But it's doubtful that popcorn accompanied the feature—a re-run of the team's 101-90 victory over the Bullets Saturday in third game of the best-of-seven Eastern Conference final.

The Celtics go into Wednesday's tilt one game down with Coach Tommy Heinsohn vowing to continue the pressure defense tactics which helped the team to victory Saturday.

But the big question is whether the Celtics can regain their shooting form.

After Saturday's victory Heinsohn said, "We were very effective on defense and got the second shots on the offensive boards. However, we didn't shoot well and that bothers me."

Washington Coach K.C. Jones

admitted the effectiveness of Boston's defense. "Their defense caused us to lose our poise for the first time since early in the Buffalo playoff series. They forced us out of our patterns and forced us to take a lot of bad shots," he said.

The teams return to Boston Garden for a Friday night game and the Celtics have announced that the game is a sell-out.

TIM O'LEARY, PRO-MANAGER

Hello Illinois.

Our real name's Olympia. But our friends call us Oly. And the way we hear it there's a good chance we might already be friends—especially if you've traveled around the country a little. Anyway, we're officially here now and we think you're going to like us.

Beer doesn't get any better.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE D-650: Tony B., aged 28, is a high school coach. "Dr. Crane," he said, "I have been much interested in your 'Compliment Club' strategy. 'It has proved very valuable in my athletic coaching. 'For I believe the boys actually are more powerful when they believe in themselves, than when they are afraid of our rival teams. 'Isn't it scientifically true that praise produces better results than criticism?' Mind Over Body Yes, indeed! For the mind exerts a very powerful influence over the body, both psychologically and medically. If you are afraid, your mind thus inhibits your strength and also upsets your glandular action. Even your muscles will show greater strength when you firmly believe you are strong! Conversely, they will be much weaker in their output when you suffer from a defeatist complex. Athletes, please take note of the following data to prove the above statements. A London psychologist conducted a handgrip experiment with a group of convalescing soldiers. He asked them to compete to see who had the strongest grip. They entered wholeheartedly into the contest and averaged 101 pounds per man. Then they were hypnotized, after which they were told they were weak, sickly, anemic and asked to grip the machine as firmly as possible. But before waking the men from their hypnotic trance, the hypnotist gave them the positive suggestion that they were strong, powerful, Herculean, and then asked them to compete regarding their handgrip. Now they averaged 140 pounds per man! That was almost 40 per cent greater than they could show when in their normal waking state. And over double their record when they felt weak, powerless, defeated. Under hypnosis you can usually show greater concentration of attention but even in your normal waking state, you can greatly zoom your strength if you are confident. And a quick way to banish your fear is to grow angry, for anger neutralizes fear and thus gives you more confidence till you actually become more powerful. Dr. Norman Vincent Peale wrote a splendid book on "The Power of Positive Thinking." Famous W. Clement Stone likewise has stressed what he calls P.M.A. (Positive Mental Attitude). And I have emphasized the medical, psychological, social and spiritual value of paying compliments to your companions, for this buoy up their self-confidence and thereby reduces fear. Over-confidence sometimes spells defeat on the athletic field but that's usually due to failure to practice as diligently and pay as close attention to the fine points of the game. So send for my booklet "The Compliment Club," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents, for it can help you win sweethearts, customers and athletic contests. (Always write to Dr. Crane in care of Dixon Evening Telegraph, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs.)

The Vermont wilderness had barely been explored at the outbreak of the Revolution, and the area was not a colony. Throughout the Revolutionary years it was known as the New Hampshire Grants and was the subject of controversy between New York and New Hampshire. The state did not gain independent status until 1791. The Battle of Hubbardton, during Burgoyne's 1777 campaign, was the only major military action in Vermont. The World Almanac notes.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
You'll be better off today if you don't rely too heavily upon the opinions of others. Your ideas will be good. Others may try to dilute them.

Things in general will work out to your satisfaction today, provided you don't make unreasonable demands that can't be met.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
Share your plans only with those you feel will fully understand and appreciate them. Avoid those who'll be non-constructive.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)

An opportunity for your son.

Newspaper route management teaches him to deal with people

A BOY with a newspaper route earns money that can help him get the things he wants. Even a college education.

More than that, he learns life's important lessons.

One of these is on how to deal with people.

Meeting his customers on his route, collecting and servicing, he gains this valuable business competence. It will help him throughout his life. Many former newspaperboys, notable successes among them, have told us as much.

Your newspaperboy also applies the arithmetic he learns in the classroom in a practical way by making change and handling bills... thus he becomes a better student. He learns, too, the value of promptness and of good manners.

In fact, you'll find that a newspaperboy manages to keep a step ahead of other boys in preparing for life... while building a bank account of his own.

Should your son be inclined to put himself that step ahead, have him get in touch with us. There may be a route available to him in your neighborhood. And along with it... the opportunity for the self-advancement you want him to have.

The Doctor says:

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB— I am a female, 26, and some 270 pounds. Other than the obesity, I am in very good health except for one ailment that has alarmed me enough to write to you.

For the past month I have been a regular watcher of a Yoga health program. I can't praise it enough. Every exercise is done slowly, deliberately and without strain. Great! Except I get strained no matter how "easy" I am on myself. It's my back, Doc.

I figures I was just out of shape and I should expect some discomfort. Then I figured (as does my family) that it's my being fat that caused it. Almost any physical problem I've ever had has been attributed to my being heavy, no matter what. I swallowed that when I was young, but now I question a blanket statement like that.

I took it easy for a couple of days, then like a fool I arm wrestled with a friend just for fun. He beat me easily and the session lasted maybe three minutes, but by the next day I was in a very bad way. Aspirin saw me through it plus using a water bed at night. It lasted about a week.

Now, whenever I stretch my spine with any exercise it causes discomfort like inflammation from my neck clear down to my bottom. Is it possible that this is an early warning sign of arthritis? Should I continue my gentle exercise in spite of my discomfort? How can my condition be diagnosed for sure? I can't afford a bunch of non-conclusive tests. If it sounds like arthritis will a great weight reduction really do any good?

Could this problem be due solely to being heavy? I would appreciate any information you may have, especially if it's "all in my head."

DEAR READER— Wow! Two-hundred-seventy pounds and you want to know if that can be the cause of your back pain.

I doubt if you have arthritis, but you could have an injury to your spine with all that weight. Think of your spine as a pole to hang things on. The more you hang on it the more strain it will be under. And, you know as well as I do that 270 pounds is a lot to hang on.

Between each vertebra there is a small cushion-like structure containing the intravertebral disk to help even light-weights withstand the shock of normal walking and daily activity. Heavy people tend to wear out or damage these structures more easily than light-weight people.

Also, sudden strain as you may have encountered in arm wrestling or with lifting can cause a sudden rupture of a disk.

You'll need to lose weight. I hope you will go to a doctor. A complete examination is the only way you will be able to tell the exact nature of your pain. Meanwhile I think you should stop your exercises that involve stretching, bending or lifting. You can start and continue a good walking program to help you during the long period of weight reduction that you must have to avoid further health problems.
